New Buildings for Fair Grounds Next Year's Exhibition

Greatest Success In Events History

Attendance Records of Former Years Fall As Crowd Throng Park.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS

All Bills Paid and Small Sum On Hand To Begin Improvements.

The board of directors of the Southwest Arkansas Fair met at headquarters in the municipal building this morning and heard reports from the various departments of the annual exposition held in this city September 23 to 28 inclusive.

That the fair this year was the most successful in the history of the organization, is the unanimous opinion of all members of the general committee. In spite of long continued drought, the exhibits in the various departments were unusually good and all the available space was filled to its capacity. The program of entertainment fairs and fair visitors were well pleased with the various entertainment features. The total attendance for the week was considerably longer than in former years.

The fair was also a financial success according to the report of the manager. The 1928 deficit will be paid in full and all expenses incident to the 1929 fair will be paid, enabling the management to start next year's fair free from debt. During the past five years the fair has been self-supporting and it has never been necessary to call on the business institutions of Hope for subscriptions to take care of the fair expenses. This is an unusual record for a fair as many of the fairs throughout the country have deficits annually that must be paid by private subscription.

The fair committee, at its meeting this morning, started a movement for the erection of a new exhibit hall and making other needed improvements at the fair grounds. The Southwest Arkansas Fair has outgrown the present facilities and, if it continues to grow and improve it is necessary to provide more adequate facilities for handling the exhibits in the various departments. The fair committee solicits the cooperation of our entire citizenship in this movement.

Hendrix Building Program On Soon

Two New Structures To Cost $150,000 To Be Erected.

CONWAY, Ark., Oct. 9. (AP)—Hendrix-Henderson College here has asked architects to prepare plans for two large buildings to be constructed soon.

One is to be a science building, and the other a woman's building, each to cost approximately $150,000. They will be fireproof.

Construction will start about January 1, under plans of the board of trustees of the school, so the buildings will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term in 1930.

Funds for one of the buildings will be provided by the City of Conway through earnings of its municipal electric light plant, while the other is expected to be financed by the constituency of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

As a prerequisite for securing the $150,000 contributed from Conway the college board must raise $200,000 additional endowment and meet the conditions of a further gift of $150,000 from the General Education Board in New York. The college board's finance committee, which at the conclusion of its last meeting here, expressed confidence that the $300,000 fund would be provided and the conditions of the Conway offer complied with prior to January 1, 1930.

Believe Trial of Former Secretary Will Be Continued

Attorney Says Conviction Equivalent To Death Sentence

UNABLE TO APPEAR

Case Recessed for Day As Court Considers Continuance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—A recess of the trial of Albert B. Fall was ordered until tomorrow morning by Justice Hitz when court convened this morning, the court stated he would have a physician examine Fall before deciding on his course of action in the case halted by the defendant's illness.

Frank Hogan, chief counsel for Fall, now on trial for accepting a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny, said before court opened this morning that his client would be unable to appear.

Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the government, said the prosecution did not want to continue with Fall in such poor physical condition, asserting he was convinced that conviction was equivalent to a death sentence.

The present trial is the third time Fall has appeared to answer to the criminal charge growing out of the naval oil reserve leases.

R. C. Stuart Named Foreman of Jury

Grand Jury Questions 40 As Court Convened At Washington

R. C. Stuart of Columbus was chosen foreman, and T. S. Cornelius of Hope, secretary, of the Hempstead county grand jury which this morning began deliberations for the fall term of circuit court.

Meanwhile the court, presided over by Special Judge W. H. Arnold of Texarkana, completed its organization for the fall term and began trial of the first cases on the civil docket. The criminal docket will be opened next Monday, October 14.

In the grand jury rooms about 40 witnesses were reported questioned this morning, with an all-day interrogation expected. The jury's first report may be made late today or early tomorrow.

Among the persons summoned for questioning are Manager Jack Hayes and employees of the Public-Saenger theatre in this city, which has been operating Sunday motion picture shows. Fines were levied in justice court recently on charges of violation of the Arkansas Sunday closing law, and it is reported that grand jury action is contemplated.

Car Straps Abandoned; Bow To Short Dresses

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9. (AP)—Exit the strap-hanger from St. Louis street cars.

New street cars here are entirely devoid of the customary dangling straps. An observant official caused the change, claiming that current styles made it inadvisable for women to raise their arms above their heads.

Bill To Punish Buyer of Rum Would Nullify Prohi Amendment Official Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—The move to make liquor purchasers liable to prosecution as prohibition violators was described yesterday by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment as one which would "nullify" the eighth amendment.

That view was set forth in a statement by Henry H. Curran, president of the association, commenting on the bill introduced by Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, to declare buyers equally guilty with manufacturers or sellers of liquor.

"The place to put a prohibition of purchase is in the eighteenth amendment, after which it will be time enough to talk about putting it into the Volstead act," Curran asserted.

"Congress left it out of the eighth amendment deliberately. Congress can not put it into the Volstead act now without nullifying the amendment on which the Volstead act is based."

Sheppard said the proposal contained in his bill was left out of the amendment, which he sponsored in the senate, because of the belief existing then that the latter could not be passed if it contained

Has Undelivered Civil War Letters

Ohio U. D. C. President Lists Those Addressed to Arkansas People.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 9. (AP)—After a delay of more than 64 years, an attempt is to be made to deliver 19 letters, written by Confederate prisoners of war at Camp Chase military prison, Columbus, O., during the Civil war, and addressed to persons then living in Arkansas.

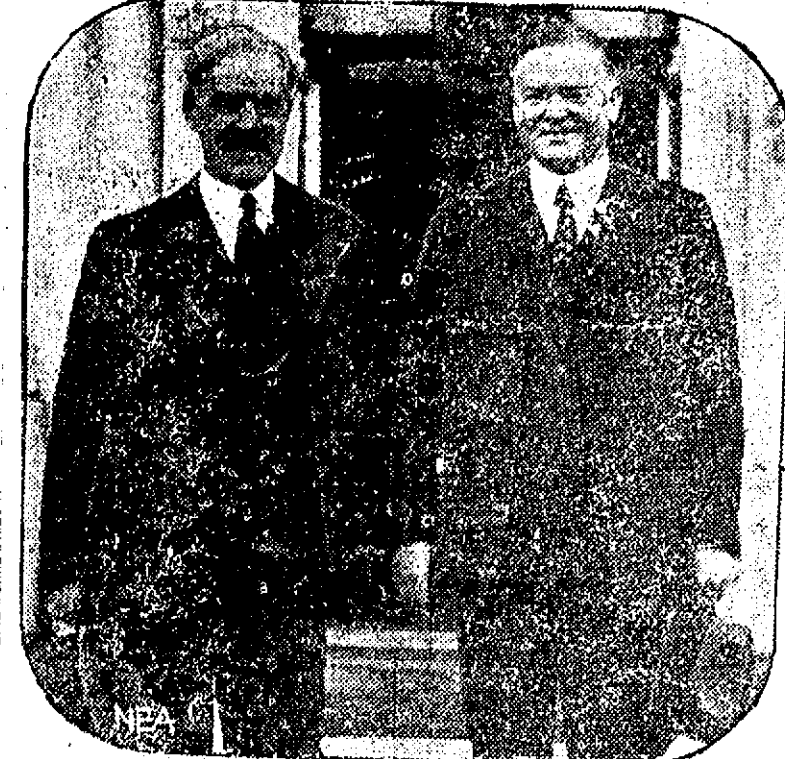

The letters have been turned over to Mrs. Albert Sidney Porter, 1724 Clifton Boulevard, Lakewood, O., president of the Ohio Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, for delivery to the persons to whom they were addressed, or to relatives of those persons.

Mrs. Porter sent a list of the 19 letters written by Arkansas men to Mrs. John F. Weinmann, president of the Arkansas Division of the U. C. V.

No detailed information was given as to the history of the letters, and it is not known here where they have been all these years, or why they were not delivered during the war.

They were placed in custody of Mrs. Porter under a resolution of (Continued on page three)

Spring Hill School Will Open Friday

New Buses See First Service In Transport On That Occasion.

Announcement is made that children of the new consolidated Spring Hill school district will assemble Friday morning at the old Spring Hill district building for grade assignments and book lists, all teachers in the school for this year being present.

Children will assemble at the usual hour in the school buildings in the districts where they formerly attended school where they will be picked up by school busses and carried to Spring Hill, arriving there at nine o'clock. Preparatory work will be outlined and everything made ready for formal entry into the new school building, which is expected to occur within this month.

The Spring Hill district was the first in this county to fall in line with school progress and adopt the consolidated school plan, thus offering to each child in that section full high school opportunities rather than the limited facilities of the older single-district school.

Insurance Man Held for Murder

(AP)—Dexter Churchill Dayton, 25, insurance salesman, was under arrest today on a charge of murder after the finding of the body of Miss Marjorie Lucy O'Donnell, 23, National Geographic Society employee, who was strangled to death in a room on the eighth floor of a Washington hotel.

Dynamite Bombs Damage Property

Car Strike In New Orleans Still Brings More Trouble

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9. (AP)—In face of a mass meeting of union street car men called for tonight to review the 100-day strike situation, dynamite bombs shortly before day caused a terrific explosion under a street car at Poychartrain Boulevard and Dante street, rocking that section of the city. The car crew escaped, terrified but unhurt.

The car was demolished, tracks torn up and splinters and steel hurled for long distances. Windows in residences throughout the section were wrecked.

Chemical Blast Wrecks Building

Many Carried To Hospital Following Explosion In Mixing Room

CLIFTON, N. J., Oct. 9. (AP)—An explosion blew out the wall of the Jacques-Wolff Chemical Manufacturing Company today, injuring a number of employees. A number of the more severely hurt were carried to hospitals and firemen were searching the debris in the belief that some had met death.

The blast, which occurred shortly before one o'clock this afternoon blew out one wall of the building and weakened the remainder of the three-story structure until officials feared momentary collapse. The explosion is reported to have occurred in an acid-mixing room.

Phillipine Row Hits Tariff Bill

Measure Now Threatened With Indefinite Delay By New Move

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—The tariff bill was threatened with indefinite delay today by injection into the senate debate of the question of Philippine independence.

The issue was revived when Senator King, of Utah, democrat, proposed an amendment calling for a proclamation for independence for the Philippines as soon as a constitutional convention, with full authority, could set up a government for the islands.

Immediately chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, an advocate of independence for the islands, was on his feet, with a warning to proceed slowly in a matter of such vital importance. It is the general belief that the bringing up of this question will delay tariff action for at least six weeks.

The King provision was offered as a substitute for the Broussard measure which provides for a tariff on Philippine imports, now free.

MacDonald Pays Tribute To Two American Heroes

AT UNKNOWN'S TOMB

Pays Touching Tribute To Washington and Unknown Soldier

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald dedicated his last full day in the United States on his momentous visit to round out his official and social program.

A conference with President Hoover to put the finishing touches on a lengthy joint statement, tributes to the memory of two American soldiers, Washington and the Unknown, and the receipt of an honorary degree from George Washington University accounted for his daylight hours.

A dinner tonight at the home of Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State will conclude the final day and early tomorrow he and his daughter Isabel will leave the capital for Philadelphia and New York en route to Canada and home.

Although the contents of the joint statement of the President and the Prime Minister are carefully guarded, it is expected to outline in a broad way the talks held since Mr. MacDonald arrived last Friday on his unprecedented goodwill mission.

Near New Record Set At State Fair

Tuesday's Crowd Chalks Up Record Attendance of Near 20,000

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 9. (AP)—The largest attendance of the week was anticipated today at the Arkansas State Fair in observance of the annual Greater Little Rock Day. Stores and business houses in Little Rock and North Little Rock were scheduled to close at one o'clock this afternoon to enable all to turn out.

Though judging of exhibits has progressed rapidly a huge task still faces the judges before the closing of the exhibition Saturday night.

Tuesday's attendance more than doubled the 18,803 recorded Monday, setting a record. The previous high mark Tuesday was set in 1923 when 20,018 entered the grounds. The attendance yesterday was swelled by attendance of a large delegation from South Arkansas.

Tick Eradication

In a special election last Saturday the voters of Union county defeated the proposal to establish a stock law.

Agricultural leaders attempting to pave the way for a tick-free South Arkansas were told by the larger landowners that a stock law was necessary before cattle-dipping could be made effective. County Judge J. G. Dagsdale called the election—and the farm vote defeated the proposal.

We quote the above case because it describes the tremendous task facing the progressive citizens of South Arkansas in making any change whatsoever in the life and customs of our people. It is a vast jump, of course, from agriculture to industry—but the jump is almost as difficult from one kind of agriculture to another.

Through most of the tradition of the South and West free range has been afforded the livestock business. Free range is now almost a thing of the past, but it can hardly be referred to without raising undue bitterness. It is a tragic fact that because the tick eradication campaign in the southern counties is bound to touch some communities which still have a nominal free range there will be vast trouble in getting the tick campaign over in this section.

The enlightened farm vote looks at the problem sensibly. Hempstead county is fortunate in that it has a stock law, and has hundreds of farmers who voluntarily dip their cattle. That is because Hempstead is one of the really great farming sections of Arkansas, and her farm population is the backbone of county and state.

This county is still asking for state aid in the tick campaign, without reply from Little Rock. Hempstead is agriculturally far ahead of many of the southern counties, and shouldn't be forced to wait on the growth of public sentiment elsewhere.

Tick eradication may be postponed in other counties, but it is already due in Hempstead. Our farmers are beginning to import pure-bred livestock by the carload this fall on the implied promise of the state that the county will be cleaned up before another year. Little Rock would do well to make that promise good.

Two Signal Honors

HOT SPRINGS, El Dorado and the state of Arkansas is gaining much favorable publicity. Last Wednesday John G. Lonsdale, reared in this city, was elected president of the American Bankers Association. Yesterday O. L. Bodenhamer, of El Dorado, was chosen national commander of the American Legion. Both elections were deserved promotions.

John Lonsdale started his career here as a clerk in a real estate office. His ability demonstrated itself at once and he rose from this humble position to a high place in the banking world. His grasp of business was unique, in that while still a young man, he played a very important part in the building of the Little Rock and Hot Springs Western Railroad, now a part of the Missouri Pacific system into this city. He accomplished other important financial achievements while around thirty or younger.

Lonsdale is a typical Southerner. He loves the South and maintains a country home near the town named for him some 16 miles east of Hot Springs. He has never lost the common touch with his people—and that perhaps is one of the most important factors in his rise in the business and financial world. The man who loses touch with his neighbors and fellow workers, does not make much progress or achieve much.

Bodenhamer is one of the most progressive men of Arkansas. He has been one of the great factors in the development of El Dorado and has held important civic positions there. He has been named to honorary places on state boards, his ability and public spiritedness have been recognized by all public officials. Bodenhamer will bring greater honor to Arkansas through his election as national commander of the greatest war veterans' organization in existence.—Hot Springs New Era.

The Goblins'll Getcha Ef You Don't Watch Out!

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—The Kellogg peace treaties with several dozen foreign nations are beginning to pile up in the State Department basement along with some 800 other treaties which we have signed in something less than 150 years.

Beautiful things these treaties are, suitable for decorations in anyone's home. Foreign offices don't just stick a treaty into an envelope and mail it off. Each document is elegantly bound in leather, between boards averaging 14 by 20 inches. The binding is in the finest material, stamped in gold with all kinds of fancy designs and with the various national seals. In green and gold, black and gold and red and gold, the treaties are a rich-looking pile.

Soon the loving, tender hands of Mrs. Amy C. Holland, the State Department's guardian and protectress of treaties, will have bundled them into their buckram boxes and stood them up alongside all the other treaties which have gone before.

It's All Very Neat

They keep them down in the archives room in the basement, a nice, clean, cool room where you couldn't find a speck of dust. Only a few years ago most of these old documents were lying around in the sub-basement of the State, War and Navy building in a pile of debris. But their present home is in fire-proof cases in a room with fire-proof doors and floors. And each one has a dust-proof buckram box of its own.

Here you may see the very first treaty signed by the United States as such, the agreement negotiated by Benjamin Franklin with France. It was a treaty of alliance in which we and France agreed to help each other any time one of us was at war with England. This treaty, signed in 1778, worked fine during the Revolution, when we needed French help, but a few years later when France needed American help it became our first "scrap of paper." Expediency kept us from living up to it.

The Louisiana Purchase treaty was a gaudy thing in its day, with its great velvet covers and its overlying network of golden sequins. The parchment within, on which the treaty was written, was adorned with scroll work and loops and whorls by a master penman. The document bears the signatures of Bonaparte, Talleyrand, Robert Livingston and James Monroe, the ink of which has well stood the test of time. Napoleon's seal is on a big red wax plaque about six inches in diameter, set in a gold box which is tied to the bindings with a gold cord. Most of the old treaties of importance were bound in satin or velvet; today they nearly always come in leather.

A Dandy Whale's Tooth There are curious items in Miss Holland's collection. Take the big whale's tooth from the Fiji Island which the king of that country was naive enough to send to President Grant in the hope of getting something in return. Every politician in Washington knew that Grant required bigger and better gifts than a whale tooth in exchange for governmental favors.

But it meant a lot to King Thapoban and his people. It had been given to them centuries back by Deigar, the god of good and evil, who lived in a big cave on the biggest of the islands and caused earthquakes when he turned over and lightning when he blinked his eyes. Ordinary Fiji mortals were never permitted to gaze upon this great ten-inch tooth. But Thapoban was the last of the Fiji kings and doubtless he saw some handwriting on a wall, for he sent the tooth to Grant as a token of his desire to negotiate a treaty of friendship and protection.

BARBS

A man has made a fiddle out of 5029 matches. This reverses the process of many boxers who can make a series of dances out of one match.

Recent stock market reverses lead to the suggestion that perhaps it ought to be renamed Walling Wall Street.

Judging by the recent naval investigations, there seems to have been quite a lot of Shearer nonsense in that department.

We never have been able to understand why some of the smarter football coaches haven't tried the experiment of getting their players into condition by sending them charging against revolving doors.

Pen State freshmen have organized a harmonica band, 1200 strong to play during football games. Football teams have survived cheer leaders, however, and there's just a chance that they'll be able to overcome this, too.

The Iowa lady who has seen more than 5000 movies ought to be pretty well acquainted with the plot by now.

Wouldn't it be easier to take the census by posting the census-takers on the roads Sunday afternoons?

MAKE YOUR COWS PAY YOU MORE MONEY EACH

"In order to make profit milk-cows we must improve the quality of our individual animals. The cheapest, safest, and surest means of doing this is by the use of a good sire," states U. G. Stoy, who has been selecting and grading up his herd for several years.

The only way to be absolutely sure that you have a profitable cow is to weigh her milk everyday, and test it for butter fat. In this way we know how much income the cow is bringing in and we can determine whether she is paying us a profit or not. By keeping the better cows and using a sire from high producing parents the amount of fat the cows produce from one generation to another can be increased according to County Agent Lynn Smith.

Following is a statement made by the U. S. Department of agriculture relative to the Dairy Herd Improvement association.

Dairy Herd Improvement Is Reflected in Milk Pail Wisconsin leads all other states in the number of dairy-herd-improvement association. It has 154 out of a total of nearly 1,100 in all the states, according to reports compiled by the Bureau of Dairy Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture.

These associations give dairymen information as to the profitability of their cows. On the basis of such information, association members have been weeding out the less desirable animals and retaining heifers from the more productive cows. The value of this practice is reflected in the steady increase in the average production of the cows under test in these associations. In 1920 the average production per cow in these herds was 217 pounds of butterfat. In 1924

Former German Soldiers Buddies of Yank Vets In Legion Post

LANCASTER, N. Y., Oct. 8.—As far as this pleasant city is concerned, the World War and its international rivalries have been completely forgotten.

Nine former members of the Imperial German Army of Wilhelm II, living in Lancaster, have established themselves as the boon companions of the former doughboys, gobs and leather-necks of the local American Legion post.

Ever since last Memorial Day, when the Legionnaires invited the former German soldiers to march with them in the parade, the German war veterans have been buddies of their former enemies. A number of them have attended meetings of the Legion post here, and all of them have been entertained in the homes of the Legion men.

One of the Germans is Richard Engelfried, who was at one time known as the youngest pilot in the German air forces. He spoke at a Legion meeting recently, describing his experiences as a member of a German combat patrol on the eastern front. It happened that all of Engelfried's service was against the Russians, so that none of his war endeavors had been directed against the Americans who made up his audience.

Engelfried expects to get his final American citizenship papers soon, and as soon as he has them hopes to enter some branch of aviation.

The other eight German veterans served in the infantry, artillery and machine gun battalions. Three of them bear wounds sustained in action, and five of them are proud possessors of the Iron Cross.

Karl Brunning, late of the "suicide squad," as the machine gun companies in the German army were called, is the original hard luck member of the group. He was wounded three times, the last wound being received on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918, a brief hour or so before the armistice ended all hostilities. This last wound nearly cost him his life, and he was kept in a hospital for a year by it.

Two of the men have their final American citizenship papers, and all the rest have their first papers. They are establishing themselves here as industrious, hard-working residents, and Lancaster is glad of their presence. George Koehnlein, who saw service in France and Russia, was wounded and won an Iron Cross, is a butcher. August Speth, who fought in France, Russia, Serbia and Italy, is a baker.

Other members of the group are Gustave Boch, a former non-commissioned officer, who holds both the Iron Cross and the Württemberg Medal; Bert Batayevsky, who served in France and Russia and won the Iron Cross; Albert Ponocny, who was cited for bravery on the Russian front; Fredrick Burgen and Karl Pries.

All of these men intend to make their permanent homes here, and are very loyal to the land of their adoption. And they are, one and all, especially proud of their friendship with the American Legion men.

It should be added, perhaps, as proof of their Americanization, that they can sing the various verses of "Hinky Dinky Parley-voo" quite as well as their American Legion buddies.

HOPE LUMBER COMPANY

The Little Grey House

The reasons why I would like to own the little grey house. First: For the Johns-Manville Asbestos shingle roof, which it has. This roof has proven to be the most economical roof on the market. It is widely known for its durability. The quick and easy way of putting on without removing old roofing. Also the lovely new cheerful colors, sizes and shapes that combines with any colors you paint your home.

The material for this roof was discovered in 1870 from the volcanic fires of earth's eruptions.

Cold winters and hot summers have no effect on these Asbestos shingles. They are completely fireproof, and will never wear out. The improvements made on Asbestos shingles in the past 10 years has been wonderful. The low price of insurance carried by those having Johns-Manville Roofs fully make up for the difference in price in other grades of roofing with that of the Johns-Manville Asbestos roof.

Second: The material that built this house was grown here in our home state manufactured in our home town by the oldest Lumber company in Arkansas. The Hope Lumber Co. No one wants to buy an old fashioned house.

The best, easiest and simplest means of having an attractive home is to cover it with a bright and durable roof of these Johns-Manville Asbestos shingles. So by giving you these examples and showing you their true worth, I hope I have convinced you that to have a successful Bright Colored attractive home you must have a good modern roof of Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles.

Very Truly,

the social Undoing of Elizabeth Ann

As a hostess, Elizabeth Ann decided that she was a grand success. She glanced happily about the tables of modish guests in the living room.

This was a party, she thought. One they'd talk about for many a day. Everything was going beautifully.

She giggled as one of the group at the nearest table trumped her partner's ace. The hum of conversation rose and fell.

And then . . . the telephone rang.

"Yes, he's here," she answered, "but he can't come to the phone. He's in the garage working on the car. . . Oh! . . . Long Distance . . . very well . . . I'll call him."

Her heart sank. The sparkle left her eyes. Too well she knew what to expect when her husband "worked on the car."

"And things had been going so well," she thought bitterly, as Ed, red-faced and perspiring, oil and grease from head to foot, paused in embarrassment at the door.

Ed was waiting in the hall when she closed the door miserably behind the last guest. He slipped a consoling arm about her.

"I'm sorry, honey!" he soothed. "It won't happen again. Tomorrow I'll order an extension telephone for that kitchen."

Telephones where you need them save time, patience, housewifely strength—even prevent minor social disasters.

Few know that one or two additional instruments cost considerably less than the single telephone they now have!

By a wisely-placed "extension" or two, and perhaps a rearrangement of the equipment you already have, an expert telephone man can often double the convenience of your telephone service.

AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Helen Page feels hopelessly in love with her guardian, Leonard Brent. A chance meeting with a dying beggar, Charles Nellin, causes Brent to change his plans for Helen's future. Soon after he tells her that she is the only grandchild of a millionaire, Cyril K. Cunningham, Brent takes her to Cunningham and offers proofs which the lonely old man accepts. Hoping to make up for the injustice done her mother, Cunningham showers the girl with affection and gifts.

Among Helen's new friends are Eva Ennis and her brother Robert, who falls in love with her. Brent finds another locket like the one he had taken from Nellin to prove Helen as the heiress. He also becomes jealous of Bob and plots to secure Helen for himself quickly. Hearing the doctor say that a sudden shock would kill the old man, Brent gets the servants out of the way and rushes into the sick room shouting wildly that Helen has been killed. His plan works and when the attendant returns, Cunningham is dead. Then Brent appears as friend and former guardian of Helen and takes charge of arrangements.

Brent tries to break off a love affair with Eva without arousing Helen's suspicions. Meanwhile, a chance meeting between Helen and Bob reveals their love for each other, but she tells him she has promised herself to another.

Next day Helen goes to New York to ask Brent to release her and finds Carmel Segro there acting very much at home. When Brent returns, Carmel throws herself into his arms before he sees Helen. This makes it easier for Helen to demand that their engagement be broken, but Brent refuses to release her, saying that he had given up marriage earlier and devoted his life to her so that now she has no right to reject him.

CHAPTER XXXII

Helen stared at Brent like a helpless creature caught in a net. Her face drained white while he held her gaze with his own, seeming to force his will upon her.

Then something very strange happened to her. A warm flood purely mental but with actual physical sensation, rushed to her heart, and filled it with courage.

"She thought of Bob—of his kisses—of the blissful joy of lying in his arms, of the divinely happy knowledge that she belonged there—that he would shelter her, love her, protect her always."

Brent's face became satanic. Helen shuddered with a slight tremor. Had she ever really thought him attractive?

Suddenly she hated him. What had he done? He had let a young girl remain madly infatuated with him when with a word he could have ended it. Why? Because he wanted to live his life for her? She could not believe it.

A smile of disillusion caught at her lips and contorted their lovely lines into an unfamiliar shape. It worried Brent a trifle. He had seen that expression on other feminine lips. And always it had presaged the begin ning of—trouTTT the beginning of an end.

Words would follow—he knew that too—and waited. They came sooner than he expected. He had lighted one of his fat Turkish cigarettes. From behind the smoke screen he manufactured with it he surveyed the girl seated across the table from him with the coldly calculating eyes of a Fox.

She leaned over and opened her denunciation rather softly. "I hate you," she said tensely. "You're like a poison vine that has fastened itself upon a young tree and is gradually strangling it. You thought you could do that with me. Rob me of my life—train me to grow up stunted and dwarfed."

"You're wrong," Brent broke in sharply. "I wanted you to be a real girl—not an empty-headed flapper."

"You wanted me to be a character-lass rag," Helen retorted. "One who would overlook your weaknesses and come to heel at your whistle. Can't you see what you say when you tell me that you sacrificed yourself for me? Was it fair? Did I have anything to say about it? Did I promise you a reward? You have no right to do anything for which you mean to make someone else pay a price unless you make your bargain first. Everyone has a right to grow up free—and not be saddled with a debt they've had no voice in acquiring."

"You were quite willing to have me love you," Brent reminded her. "But you knew I was just a kid, have led me on as you did. Oh, I know Helen protested. 'You should know you weren't always kind to me, but you fascinated me, and it wasn't... it wasn't cricket. You must have realized that some day I would meet the right man—that I couldn't stay in love with you. It would have been so much better if you'd lived your life for yourself.'"

"Well," Brent agreed a bit laconically, "I didn't, and that's that. What are you going to be about it? Be a quitter just because you think you care for a young upstart? A bum too. Why, you poor foolish girl. Don't you know that any man in Ennis' position who aspires to marry a girl as wealthy as you are is open to the charge of being a fortune hunter?"

"No matter what you say, I love him," Helen declared. "How can you think of marrying me when I tell you that?"

"That's just another one of those things you wouldn't understand," was Brent's unsatisfactory answer.

"Well, Helen said, and her voice was vibrant with sincerity, 'I am sure you can understand me when I say I will not marry you.'"

Brent contended himself with raising an eyebrow, knowing that she would go on.

"I was wrong to think of it after I knew that I loved Bob," she said hurriedly; "but I did believe I owed you something. All that is changed now. You will be able to console yourself readily enough. And if I had not seen what I did and you had told me you meant to make me pay your price for the care you've given me I should feel just as I do now about marrying you. You've cured me of believing in sacrifices. If I sacrificed myself and Bob now I couldn't make you happy—it would be a useless gesture."

Brent smiled inwardly. "Let me be the judge of that," he contributed.

Helen shook her head. "No," she said firmly. "I'm going to make my own decisions—and stick to them."

"Are you?" Brent drawled, beginning to be amused. After all, he thought, she might be more interesting as an unwilling bride. It would be a diversion to spend a little time in conquering her. And it suited his mood, which had lost all gravity—in the certainty that he held the whip hand over her—to let her have the reins and pull and camp at the bit.

There was always his ace card to be played. She had nothing in her hand to play against it. He was absolutely safe—as safe as such a game as his could be, he amended. Damn it, why hadn't he been able to discover the owner of that second locket?

As his mind swept back over the night he had picked it up in the hall at Bramblewood he remembered that no one present had appeared to have lost anything.

And he hadn't dared ask about it. Even a few tentative questions put to Helen had elicited no knowledge of the locket, or of any loss among her guests.

Brent had found himself up against a blank wall in regard to his discovery. His inability to place the ownership was the one genuine worry he had in the matter of acquiring the Cunningham fortune. Carmel was a nuisance. He knew he should probably have to keep her at a distance with the payment of a reasonable amount of blackmail, but she did not greatly trouble him. Eva he dismissed with a shrug.

Helen was gathering her fur about her neck preparatory to leaving the table. Brent saw that she meant to end their luncheon abruptly.

He stood up and assisted her by drawing back her chair when she rose. His manner was perfect. "Allow me to pay the check and go with you," he said pleasantly.

Helen realized that her attitude was childish. Brent had always told her that superior persons did not follow impulses—though he followed many of them himself. But Helen did not know it.

Remembering what he had said she decided to be more worldly. "Very well," she said quietly. The drive to the station would give her an opportunity to impress upon him fully and finally that she was serious, she reflected. And she wanted to leave him with no doubt in his mind that everything was at an end between them.

Presently they were making a tortuous way through the traffic jam. Helen seized the moment to turn to Brent and tell him that, as they could not avoid seeing each other on the matter connected with the Cunningham estate, he must understand that she was going to marry Bob Ennis.

"Are you?" he said lazily, laughed. "Soon?"

Helen blushed furiously. She felt as though Brent knew that she had quarreled with Bob.

"Because, before you marry him," Brent went on, "I have something to say to you that may cause you to change your mind."

Helen missed the underlying threat in his words. "Nothing you could say could do that," she rejoined coldly.

"No?" It pleased Brent to play with her. "Do you believe that enough to give me your promise not to marry anyone else without first hearing what I have to say?"

"Of course I do," Helen declared with the fullest assurance that the course of true love was now to run smoothly for her.

"I shall consider that a sacred promise," Brent told her.

Helen did not answer. In a few minutes they were at the station.

Science Called Upon To 'Rejuvenate' Old Marble

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 8.—The "rejuvenation" of a piece of marble from what is said to be Colonus's Temple in Jerusalem in order that the stone could withstand the American climate in the latest feat of science.

Professor J. E. Shaw, head of the department of ceramics at Pennsylvania State College, was called upon to lend his aid in preserving the stone. He performed a successful "rejuvenation" operating by reinforcing the stone with a colored cement.

Promoter Declares Thursday Night Card Will Give Fans Money's Worth

Leavelle Says This Show Is In Line With High-Class Boxing Attractions Slated To Show During the Fall and Winter Months.

Tex Leavelle, promoter, who Thursday night offers fans here the second show under his direction declared this morning that it is in line with entertainments he plans to stage during the coming winter months and will be as good as any ever shown in the smaller cities.

Neither Stacy nor Malone fight for the fun it offers, the promoter declared. "Any time either of those birds goes in the ring," he declared, "somebody is going to put down a real piece of change. In this instance it was me, and I think the fans will agree after the show I found some good talent and brought it in."

The bouts between Taylor and Pierce and Celmar and Quill are continue to be chief in interest among lovers of boxing, principally because the fellows, with the exception of Pierce, are well known here, each having a following. The Celmar-Quill bout especially is giving a "kick" to prospects of a real scrap.

Fans from many surrounding towns, believing Leavelle will give them their money's worth, are arming for seats well in advance of fight date and the attendance promises to set a new record for fistie events here.

Seven years later, the Blanche, O., Nationals took on a mite of an infielder. For his services he was to receive $1 a game.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Boxer Eddy Mack's name is Pedro Quintana—Huggins was the man who brought Rogers Hornsby to the big leagues—Stump Thomas has been running amuck at Georgia Tech and this may be his biggest year—Some dopesters predict this will be a big season for Hallback Murrell of the Army—because everybody will be laying for Cagle—When Billy Evans was umpiring, the world series job was worth $1000 to an ump—Billy bearded Judge Landis in his den and told him "twas worth 15 centuries—"Nothing doing" said the judge, "the umpires are only a necessary evil in this series"—Whereupon, Bill got hot and told the judge where to get off, and the umpires got the $1500.

That was money, of course, in 1890 especially, for a 16-year-old kid infielder. The kid was Huggins. From there it was another step to faster company, to the American Association, then to the Cincinnati Reds. The kids on the tin roof had a new infielder to watch, and though he was only 5 feet 4 inches in height and weighed but 135 pounds, he could play ball. He had the eye of an eagle and was made lead-off man.

Base Stealers Upset Him

The little fellow fought under a great handicap at second base. Big chaps charging into the bag frequently upset the midge; vicious slides sent Huggins and the ball spinning. So Hug tried a new method. Once he had his hands on the ball, he leaped at the base-runners. He took a lot of shocks that way, but found it worked better than letting them sock him.

Hug was originally a right-handed hitter. He found he was being thrown out at first on a lot of grounders, so he changed over to the left side of the plate. But first he took a series of gym lessons to strengthen the muscles on the left side of his body.

Hug couldn't hit 'em over the fences. But he studied the style of Willie Keeler—"hit 'em where they ain't." How well he learned was exemplified in a game at Cincinnati against St. Louis. Hug hit a liner along the left field foul line for three bases the first time up. The next trip he lined along the right field foul line for another triple. His third time at bat, the center left-fielder was playing to the left and the right fielder hugging the foul line. Hug sent a third triple to right center. And the fourth time up he bunted.

Studied Men, Too

Huggins mastered baseball, then he mastered men. He never fined players, he said, because taking their money wouldn't correct their faults. He strove by reasoning to convince. His patience was monumental.

Youngsters Prep for Fordyce Game

Bobcats Next Tangle Is With One of Strongest Teams In State

If these Hope Bobcats go down in defeat Friday next in their combat with the Fordyce eleven, it won't be because they haven't worked to get themselves in readiness for the fray.

They came back home from Camden a bit dejected, attributing their loss there to over-confidence and lack of condition. These faults they set about to remedy, with the result that Fordyce will meet a bunch of fighting, conditioned Cats ready to go the limit in physical endurance.

There are rumors of certain ineligible charges being made against team members, but it is hoped these charges will be explained away before the Fordyce tilt. The charges concern four of the outstanding members of the eleven, and their loss would be a real blow to Coach Coleman's championship aspirations.

A move is on foot to ask business houses to close during the time of the game Friday, assuring the Cats the hearty support of Hope citizens—something sadly lacking in former years.

Buck Jones, Famous Screen Star, Coming Friday to Stamps

Hollywood Celebrity Will Film Picture While Here

He's coming to Stamps in person—the star of great western pictures—the idol of motion picture fans who like their heroes astride plunging bronchos. He is Buck Jones, Hollywood's greatest western star, and he is in Stamps, Friday, Oct. 12, as the extraordinary attention with Robbins Bros 4-ring circus, which will exhibit for two performances only, in that city that day.

Buck will bring with him his world renowned movie horses, including "Silver," his entire motion picture company and a battalion of stunt riders direct from his Hollywood ranch studio.

Scenes will be made at Stamps at both the afternoon and evening performances so that folks will have a chance to get in the movie and also see just how the "flickering squeakies" are made, regardless of which show they attend.

Among the most sensational of the great circus acts imported this season from Europe, to appear exclusively with Robbins Bros. big show, is "The Human Fly" or colling walker, who defies all the laws of gravitation by walking upside down sixty feet above the heads of the spectators, right up under the top of the big tent. The "Human Fly" has been the sensation of London, Paris and Berlin for the past two seasons. Baffling all scientists he only smiles and will not divulge his uncanny secret.

as important, but not all of the catches were small fry.

To date, 19 prisoners have been held indefinitely under a general order that refuses them freedom until the alleged crime ring here is shattered. Seven officers, or former officers, have been charged with felonies.

Two officers, Cal Baird, deputy sheriff and Clint Millhollen, policeman were arrested Monday for possession of liquor. Mayor Glenn A. Pace is under bond on a charge of having forced a witness in a murder case to leave town and Sam Jones, a deputy constable, is charged with having accepted $20 per month from a bootlegger. D. T. Blassingham and J. D. Lee, former policemen are charged with having liquor in their possession.

The military court of inquiry, seeking to unravel the mystery surrounding the assassination almost a month ago of District Attorney John A. Holmes, has given little indication of its progress, but apparently the list of witnesses is inexhaustible. Holmes' slaying was the overt act which finally led Governor Dan Moody to declare martial law and order a thorough cleanup.

Births Recorded In All But Three States

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—After 17 years of campaigning to convince the country that vital statistics are actually vital, the United States children's bureau now sees the long-sought goal. "Every state in the birth registration area by 1930," almost accomplished.

A little more than three months remain in which to win two of the three outstanding states to the birth registration banner before 1930 appears on the office calendar.

A test now is on in New Mexico and Texas is ready for testing. Both likely are to be included in the registration area. Then only South Dakota will remain outside. Lacking a satisfactory law, that state will be unable to tally its births in an accredited fashion until legislation is enacted. Such action is hoped for at the next session of the South Dakota legislature.

Because vital statistics form the foundation for its entire health betterment program, the children's bureau led the movement, which later was joined by the census bureau, public health service, medical associations, life insurance companies and civic organizations. In 1912, when the children's bureau was organized, not a vital statistic was available nationally.

Bridge Pontoon Blows Up, Killing Four Germans

BREMEN, Germany, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and many injured today and glass and windows in the vicinity broken when a Kaiser bridge pontoon exploded. The pontoon was thrown several hundred feet in the air, falling on the stern of a motor yacht and crushing it.

The inner compartment of the pontoon had been newly painted, the paint producing an explosive gas while drying. It was reported a man among those killed lighted a cigar, accidentally igniting the gas.

If You Are Hunting, Better Watch Your Sunrise and Sunset Hours

A table showing the exact official time of sunrise and sunset in Arkansas during the state and federal season for shooting migratory birds has been furnished to the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission by W. C. Hickman of the United States weather bureau, as a convenience to hunters to prevent infractions of the law prohibiting the killing of birds before sunrise or after sunset.

Little Rock time is given in the table, and differs from 10 to 15 minutes along the Mississippi river, with a similar difference in time in

Pilots Teach Boys, 12, How To Guide Planes

WACO, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—At an age when most youngsters envy firemen and policemen, two 12-year-old Waco youths already have begun flying careers. Each has nearly an hour of flying time to his credit.

U. G. Goodwin and Woodrow Eason spend their spare time at Waco's airport. When visiting pilots alight, one of the boys frequently climbs in, "gives her the gun," and taxis the ship to a gas pump for service.

Both boys have ridden planes since they were eight. Pilots say they will be ready for licenses long before reaching the required age of 17.

"I guess pilots don't like answering so many questions, so they just started teaching us," explains Eason, whose father is a pilot.

ACHED ACROSS BACK AND SIDES

Painful Effects of Constipation Relieved by Thedford's Black-Draught.

Louisville, Ky.—In telling how she was benefited by taking Thedford's Black-Draught, Mrs. J. C. Dickerson, of 526 North Seventeenth Street, this city, says that until about seven years ago she had been a sufferer from constipation.

"This usually brought on a dull, stupid headache," explains Mrs. Dickerson. "I ached all across my back and sides. I felt tired, even when I hadn't done any work."

"A friend of mine came to see me one day when I had the headache so badly, and told me to take some Black-Draught, which I did. It relieved me so much. I have never found anything that gave me so much relief."

"Now I take Black-Draught whenever I feel the least bad, and notice that I do not have the headache."

Thousands of others have written to tell how many disagreeable symptoms, due to constipation, have disappeared after they had taken Thedford's Black-Draught.

In successful use nearly 100 years. Only 1 cent a dose.

Girl, 9, Unconscious for Weeks Since Being Hit by Auto, May Soon Awaken

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 8.—For weeks 9-year-old Charlotte Norris has lain unconscious in her cot at the Cincinnati General Hospital. Now, however, she is believed to be about ready to awaken.

On August 27 Charlotte was hit by an auto while going across the street to buy some candy. She was brought to the hospital suffering from a cerebral concussion. Unconscious, she was put in a bed in the children's ward.

For many days she lay motionless, never opening her eyes or moving a muscle. After a week she was taken to the operating room, where surgeons performed a delicate operation to relieve the pressure on her brain.

Since then her slumber has not been so deep. Frequently she opens her eyes, although when she does it is obvious that she does not know what she sees. Often she tosses on her bed, moving her arms or legs slightly. She has not, however, uttered so much as a whisper since she entered the hospital.

In the last few days it is evident that she understands a little bit of what is said to her. When the nurse asks her to put out her tongue, for instance, she responds, although there is no light of understanding in her eyes, and Charlotte Norris, her nurse and mother.

The performances seem to be quite an effort for her.

A medical authority familiar with her case says that her awakening will come when nature is ready to have her awaken, and not before.

"In a case like this," he says, "the brain literally stops working. It ceases to function. When nature has healed the membranes that lie between the brain and the skull membranes that were torn by the accident, and repaired by the operation that was performed—then only will nature permit the brain to awaken, and only then will the girl be able to use her voice again."

The physician explained that while nature is busy healing the disturbed brain cells, other functions of the body are not disturbed. Respiration, digestion and the like go on unimpeded. Only the ability to think and to speak are upset. When they are regained, nature has finished her task of healing.

During the first part of her stay in the hospital, Charlotte was fed a mixture of milk, egg and sugar through a tube. Now, however, she is able to eat normally, and is fed cereals, mashed potatoes, broth and orange juice.

"She seems to be ready to awaken, but we cannot be sure," says her doctor. "It may be in a day, a week or a month. It all depends on how soon nature is ready to have her."

Sweet Pickle Pears

Wash, peel, cut pears in eights, core, weigh. Prepare lime water, using four heaping tablespoons of lime to one gallon of water, and soak pears for three hours. Remove from limewater, wash, and freshen for one hour.

For every 1-2 pounds of pears make a syrup by boiling one quart of water and two cups of sugar together for five minutes, then add the pears and cook rapidly for thirty minutes. Let stand in syrup overnight. Next morning add one cup sugar, one cup vinegar and the following whole spices tied in a bag: Three teaspoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons cloves, 2 teaspoons allspice, and one teaspoon mace. Cook all together until pears are transparent (about one hour). Cool in syrup, pack in sterilized jars, and process pears 15 minutes at simmering point.

If you should lift the body of every car

and compare the chassis—
then you too would choose
The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vitally important details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis:

Buick's great new Valve-in-Head engine developing 92 horsepower in the 12- and 132-inch models, and 80's horsepower in the 118-inch models. Unapproached in sturdiness, all-round performance, ability, reliability and economy, as well.

Buick's new Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes providing smooth, positive, silent braking, with minimum pedal pressure. And—because fully protected against dust, dirt and water, operating at maximum efficiency in any weather.

Buick's new frictionless steering gear and new Road "Chock" Eliminator, twin advancements introduced by Buick. The Buick wheel offering effortless control throughout its entire turning range and the new Road Shock Eliminator assuring complete freedom from annoying jolts and jares.

Buick's new, longer rear springs, and new

Lovejoy DualShock Shock Absorbers—front and rear. Combining to check both bound and rebound, and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere. And, finally, such established Buick superiority as the famous double-drop frame of toughest steel—the massive side and cross members reinforced at points of stress to insure greatest long life—the celebrated torque tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering... and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f.o.b. factory... what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!
